LAND OF DISASTERS

London Times: "Action English Garrison Against United States." In commenting upon the fact that Siberia, the insurance company will be obliged to pay about $35,000,000 for San Francisco losses, the London Times makes this curious observation:

"There is, however, one moral and this is not new, it is that only really strong companies, with abundant resources, have a right to go to America for business. Only those companies which can withstand tremendous losses can live economic any money in the kind of catastrophes."

"America is land of 'catastrophes'."

The people who live here have always seemed to regard it as the most delightful and favored land under the sun. They have succeeded to read about the wild symptoms that sweep down out of existence in the eastern tropics, or amid great ships. They have heard of the mighty flood in Chinese river that carry death to so many thousands. Only recently an earthquake about Fernandina and reports said many thousands were killed. Venezuela, not content with the burial of two cities in ancient times, has just caused a thrill of terror to spread over southern Pará. Alpine volcanoes are too numerous to name and names. Only a little while ago, some 1,200 men were buried alive in a French mine.

London itself was the scene of a fire that has become traditional in its vastness. The worst plague, perhaps that ever prostrated a modern city, killed tens of thousands of people in that same capital. Lisbon's earthquake and tidal wave and Mount Beira's entombment of a city are other world-catastrophes.

Perhaps every people imagines that it dwells in greatest safety and at the crest from fire, flood, wind, earthquake and pestilence. The human mind is so easily constituted that it remembers pleasure longer and with a keener vivacity than it remembers pain. The generation forgets the woes of the former, and it contents itself with the blessings of the present.

Troubles, and big ones, have come to the United States, but a glance at its history will convince any one that it is not really a "land of catastrophes." It has probably had no more than its share of the unforeseen and unpredictable calamities that occasionally afflict mankind. Moreover, the surpouring of $10,000,000 of gifts for San Francisco in a week from the people of this country say one thing most eloquently. If great wounds come to the land of "catastrophes," nowhere else on earth is there so much generosity ready to heal them.

by Alleged Crook From Texas

Cushing, Okla., May 1.—George Cook, for whom there is a reward offered of over $500 for his arrest in Texas, was captured here today by Chief of Police Hopkins. Cook was wanted in Texas for horse-stealing and in Oklahoma for burglary. He is young, looking to be not over 25 years of age. At the time of his capture, he was accompanied by a woman, Eddie Meadows. They had taken a hand car at Lindsay, and started toward Cushing. While within a mile of here, they left the car and attempted to hide on a south bound freight.
